

New faces in the cast

BLACKMAIL and murder are among crimes being committed at Wimborne's Allendale Community Centre this week—or so Wimborne Drama Club would have us believe.

The crimes are important events in the script of the club's latest production, Dr. Morelle, which is on tonight, tomorrow and on Saturday.

The play is a comedy thriller set in 1953 and based on a war-time radio series.

It tells of blackmail and threats to the life of Brian Cartwright, (played by Arthur Brooks), who invites the suspects, a detective and a reporter to dinner—with unfortunate consequences.

The club have two new faces in the cast—David Sherwill, usually their lighting expert, who plays one of the suspects, and Peter Brooks as Miles, the man-servant, seen in this picture on the floor after being hit on the head.
